HEADACHE

Because of its many possible implications, headache can be an exacting problem in diagnosis. Often, indeed, it is only by response to treatment that its true origin can be determined. Yet relief always remains the first consideration. Anadin Tablets provide a safe analgesic in all uncomplicated cases of headache. The tablets are rapid in action, well tolerated and combine the pain-relieving effects of aspirin and phenacetin with the mild stimulant action of caffeine and quinine.

Health Congress at Margate

THE Rt. Hon. Lord Moran, M.C., M.D., F.R.C.P., was the President of the Royal Sanitary Institute Health Congress at Margate this year. Lord Moran, a past president of the Royal College of Physicians, said in his opening address that he was the first doctor to be president of the Congress. The four-day congress included sessions on eight principal subjects and conferences for four groups of people whose main concern is with the public health—medical officers of health, health visitors, engineers and surveyors, and sanitary inspectors. Within each session one particular aspect had been selected for the addresses and discussion.

Under Preventive Medicine the contribution of the school health service was selected as the subject this year; at the Session on Hygiene in Industry, the health of the industrial worker and the types of provision for occupational health services from which the choice must lie in the future raised interesting and conflicting proposals. Engineering and Architecture included such contrasting subjects as research into the organisation and design of hospital outpatient departments, and rural sewerage. The Veterinary Hygiene Session was concerned with milk and meat; and the Food and Nutrition Section dealt with bacteriological standards for perishable foods. Engineers and surveyors were discussing the duties of river boards and the discharge of trade effluents in sewers; and insecticides and the control of insect-borne disease came under the Tropical Hygiene Section. Housing and Town Planning were studied on Wednesday afternoon; sanitary inspectors discussed aspects of housing in rural areas among several other subjects; and the Medical Officers of Health Conference dealt with the problems associated with domiciliary care and welfare schemes and the administrative problems of old age.

Two very different problems were the concern of the Maternal and Child Health Section: hospital as against domiciliary midwifery; and the child neglected in his own home. This session was also attended by a number of health visitors before their own conference, which considered the modern trends in the work of the health visitor and their relation to her training.

The wide variety of subjects discussed reminded one of the huge extent of the problem of public health, and how very small any single part must appear when seen against the wide background of the many other related interests.

The congress is no longer only national; speakers and audience attended from all parts of the United Kingdom, with representatives of, perhaps, 800 authorities, associations, societies etc., including ministries and government departments. It is international in interest and this year Dr. Brock Chisholm, Director General, World Health Organisation, and other members were present, together with representatives from 38 overseas countries who included a doctor from Israel and four delegates from Russia, one of whom was a woman, making a total of over 2,000 people attending.

That the problems of health are closely inter-related was evident and the significant role of the health visitor in the future and other public health nurses arose in a number of the sessions. The papers read frequently presented the conflicting directions which could be taken at this time, particularly in the development of industrial services, the encouragement given to mothers to have their babies in their homes or in hospitals, and, with regard to the health visitor, whether her training should include a university preparation before a basic nurse training, and whether her work should be limited to purely health teaching with selective visiting or whether domiciliary care could be included as an essential part of her work as a 'family nurse' working with the closest possible association with her colleague the family doctor, as described by Professor W. S. Craig.

Nurses taking part in the congress included the Hon. Eve Chetwynd, S.R.N., S.C.M., M.T.D., H.V. District Superintendent and Approved District Teacher, Watford, who gave a paper in the symposium on Hospital Midwifery versus Domiciliary Midwifery, emphasising the essential importance of the family unit at the birth of a new citizen. Miss J. M. Akester, Diploma in Nursing, University of London, H.V.Cert,, Superintendent Nursing Officer, West Sussex County Council, who spoke on Modern Trends in the Work of the Health Visitor, and their Relation to her Training; and Miss E. L. Gowing, Superintendent of Health Visitors, Manchester, who opened the discussion at this session.

Extracts from the relevant papers will be published in later issues and school nurses, industrial nurses, midwives and health visitors will appreciate the controversial suggestions presented so that they can study and discuss them while planning, themselves, for the future developments within their particular service.

Lord Moran, this year's President of the Royal Sanitary Institute Health Congress, is received in Margate by the Mayor, Councillor Mrs. B. M. Giles, J.P.

Thanking the Cinemas

MANY DISTINGUISHED GUESTS were among those who attended the reception given by the Countess Mountbatten of Burma and the Educational Fund Appeal Council at the Royal College of Nursing. The occasion was to express the thanks of the Council to the producers and distributors of the films recently shown in aid of the Appeal. During the evening a cheque for £10,596 18s. 4d. was handed over to Lady Mountbatten by Sir Philip Warter, Chairman of Associated British Picture Corporation, Ltd., as the proceeds of the cinema collections made by nurses in cinemas of the A.B.C. Circuit. Others present were Lady Heald, Miss E. G. Duff Grant, Miss Anna Neagle, and Mr. Herbert Wilcox. The presence of several distinguished nurses from the Far East, now studying at the College, added a vivid note. (See also page 446).

Co-operation in the Health Services

THE COMMITTEE appointed by the Central Health Services Council (Ministry of Health) has now published its Report on Co-operation between Hospital, Local Authority and General Practitioner Services, available from H.M. Stationery Office, price 1s. 6d. The need for more co-operation is recognised at the outset and the Report suggests that principal obstacles are lack of unity in the various branches of the health service, and the fact that the administrative areas (for example, of local authorities and regional boards) do not correspond. The Committee examined thoroughly examples of efforts at co-operation which had already been initiated in various areas by authorities on the spot, as a guide to them in their recommendations. Finally, they reached the conclusion that 'local joint health consultative committees' should be set up for convenient groupings of local health authorities, executive councils and hospital management committee. The area covered by one of these new joint health consultative committees should be called a 'local health service area' and its demarcation should be decided regionally so as to suit local circumstances. The Report expresses the hope that the Minister would circulate the findings to all the authorities concerned, and offered a suggestion that a series of regional conferences should be called to discuss the matter. In a supplementary memorandum to the Report, the Hon. Arthur Howard, a member of the Committee, dissented from the proposal to create yet further committees, and thought that the desired co-operation would be best achieved by 'the greatest permissible freedom of action at all levels, particularly for those members of the Service who come into direct personal contact with the patient and the potential patient'.

Professional Conference and Study Day

The Professional Conference in connection with the Royal College of Nursing Annual General Meeting, on Wednesday evening, July 2, will be on Recent Advances in Medicine. The Study Day on Friday, July 4, will be on Twentieth Century Nursing. Full particulars will be published next week. Please reserve these dates.

Voluntary Service

THE MINISTER OF PENSIONS, Mr. D. Heathcote-Amory, M.P., addressed the annual general meeting of the Central Council for the Care of Cripples, held on April 25, for which the Drapers Company had lent their beautiful Hall in Throgmorton Street in the City of London. Mr. Heathcote-Amory in a delightful address—sympathetic, spirited and humorous—said "I look on our mutual work as exciting and worth-while. But your charter is wider than mine; you look after people of all ages, while I am only dealing with war-disabled or those disabled on account of their service. We have 700,000 war pensioners at present, or one million if you include war widows, but we count ourselves fortunate in the Ministry because we have 7,000 voluntary workers to help us. I am a great believer in our national tradition of voluntary service, and I think it would be a sad day for this country if that voluntary spirit were to fail. Some things can be better done by voluntary bodies, they are less rigid than Government departments. So often the path forward has been blazed by voluntary work, and at a certain stage the State comes in and takes over, and that, I think, is quite sound and logical—but only if voluntary effort is encouraged to push on ahead when the first steps have been consolidated."

A Changed Attitude

"WHAT AN IMMENSE change there has been in the last 30 to 40 years", Mr. Heathcote-Amory continued, "the period during which your Council has been working. How much we owe to men and women of faith and vision, such as Sir Robert Jones, Dame Agnes Hunt, Lord Nuffield. It is a good plan to look back; I remember so well, when I was young, the number of deformed and crippled, both young and old, who were accepted by everyone as utterly hopeless cases. Today, what a change! What a debt we owe to our orthopaedic surgeons and all those men and women who have helped to make their work effective. But it is perhaps among the children that the most rewarding work is being done; the dividends here are so great. I visited one of my hospitals the other day, where a small boy with deformed legs had undergone a successful operation and was walking for the first time. While I was there his mother visited him, and for the first time she saw her son standing and walking about. It was something I shall never forget." Sir Geoffrey Peto, K.B.E., in the chair, presented the Council's annual report, which mentioned the principal events of the year's work and particularly stressed the Fifth World Congress of the International Society for the Welfare of Cripples, held in Stockholm in September 1951, to which the Council had sent delegates. The chairman emphasised the importance of international work and the exchange of information and experience which it encouraged. The Report expressed the Council's gratitude to Mr. Derek McCulloch (Uncle Mac) who for years had championed the cause of cripped and invalid children and whose staunch support was invaluable to the Council in their work.

Some three hundred nurses, mainly members of the NAPT Sanatorium Matrons' Section and Nurses' Section, attended the Service which was conducted by the Vicar, the Reverend L. M. Charles-Edwards. Rosary and Benediction for Roman Catholic nurses were celebrated at the Church of Corpus Christi, Maiden Lane, Strand, where the Sermon was given by the Reverend Joseph O'Hear, M.B., Ch.B.

For Health Visitors and Midwives

IT IS, OF COURSE, important that local authority representatives should keep informed on the statutory duties and changing preparation needed for these by health visitors, but equally unfortunate that so few nurses and midwives are able to attend the conference related to their work, held during the Royal Sanitary Institute annual congress. Delegates may be sent by their local authority for the whole congress, whereas health visitors may have to take part of their annual holiday. A number were present at the Health Visitors Conference presided over by the Lady Cynthia Colville, D.C.V.O., at which Dr. Hugh Paul, Professor W. S. Craig and Miss J. M. Akester spoke on modern trends in the work of the health visitor and their relation to her training. Subsequently a delightful tea-party which was given by the Public Health Section within the Isle of Thanet Branch of the Royal College of Nursing for delegates and friends, was attended by over 100 guests, including the Mayor and some of the speakers. The Chairman of the Section, Miss M. H. Allen and members received the guests and Dr. B. Briant, President of the Branch was present. Two receptions were given to delegates by the Mayor and at the Congress Dinner Mr. Rees J. Williams, Chairman of the Institute, expressed their appreciation of the hospitality afforded by the Borough of Margate and announced with regret the retirement at the end of the year of Dr. J. W. Dudley Robinson, the secretary to the Institute for 24 years. Lord Moran, President of the Congress, concluded with a plea for a return of the graces of life and the sense of adventure. (See also page 433).

To Denmark

MRS. B. A. BENNETT, Chief Nursing Officer of the Ministry of Labour and National Service, is flying to Denmark for a few days' visit at the invitation of the Danish Council of Nurses. During a round of engagements there she will speak principally on staffing and recruitment of nurses under the National Health Service and on recent research in nursing and hospital problems in this country. In particular, she will refer to the Nuffield Trust investigation into the function and design of hospitals. Mrs. Bennett will visit Aarhus University where she will speak on the work of the International Council of Nurses Nursing Services Committee of which she is chairman. She will also meet a committee of Danish nurses who are preparing a paper on acceptable standards of nursing service for tuberculous patients, for the International Council of Nurses. Visual aids will be used considerably by Mrs. Bennett during her tour to assist in overcoming any language difficulty which may be encountered.

RETROLENTAL FIBROPLASIA

by EDWARD I. OSTRY, M.B.E., M.R.C.O.G., D.P.H., Senior Registrar, Samaritan Free Hospital for Women, London.

SOME diseases have been recognised and described since earliest recorded times. Many of these after centuries still occupy scientists and clinicians, providing material for research in our long struggle for health. The advent of a new disease stimulates our interest, curiosity and speculation to an even greater degree, proving a fresh challenge to knowledge and skill. We ask how does this new condition arise ? In what circumstances does it occur ? Whom does it affect ? To what measures will it respond, and what will be its effect upon the individual and on the community ?

There seems to be no doubt now that retrolental fibroplasia is such a condition today; it is fast becoming the commonest cause of blindness in infants.

Is retrolental fibroplasia in fact a new condition?

At Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore a follow-up of all infants with a birth weight of four and a half pounds or less, born between 1935 and 1944, showed no cases, but 12 per cent. of all similar infants born between 1945 and 1947 became blind from retrolental fibroplasia. In Vancouver there is no record of any case before 1948. Since then however cases have begun to appear and the incidence is increasing rapidly. The first case was described in this country in 1949.

Features of the Disease

Retrolental fibroplasia mainly affects premature children with a birth weight of three and a half pounds or less, and the incidence among these children varies greatly from one country to another, and even from city to city. It is thought that the incidence is increasing, though no one as yet knows why, and it is unlikely that this will be known until the cause has been found. As is usual when little is known, numerous theories of causation have been advanced, but little can be proved.

Some negative aspects of the disease seem clear: the condition is not related to the age of the mother, to virus diseases or to bleeding during pregnancy.

Some positive features have also emerged; (a) it is more common in primiparous offspring (20 per cent.) than in multiparous ones (9.5 per cent.); (b) by far the majority of the cases occur in infants weighing less than four and a half pounds; (c) it seems to occur more frequently among the weaker premature infants who remain longer in incubators and in oxygen; (d) the disease, though originally assumed to be a congenital defect, is now known not to be present at birth. It does not occur in utero but the first signs appear at about the third week after birth. The assumption that the increasing incidence is because more premature babies are saved is partly fallacious as the incidence is so unevenly distributed. In Switzerland, for instance, where the care of premature babies is particularly vigilant and successful, very few cases have appeared.

Seeking the Cause

In addition to the known facts mentioned above, certain claims have been made that specific causes have been found. Kinsey and Zacharias have shown that when iron plus a water-miscible Vitamin A preparation is given (a water-miscible preparation permits a much greater proportion of Vitamin being absorbed) the incidence of retrolental fibroplasia is up to twenty times as high as when iron alone is given or when it is given with a less readily absorbable form of Vitamin A. From this they conclude that excessive doses of Vitamin A are a causative factor in producing the disease.

Mallek and Spohn pointed out that of 15 cases occurring in Vancouver, 13 appeared in one hospital alone, and only two in all the other hospitals. In checking over the treatment of premature infants in all hospitals there, they found that the treatment was essentially the same in all of them, except that pooled stored blood was given as a transfusion for anaemic premature infants in the hospital which had the high incidence of retrolental fibroplasia. As a result they attributed the disease to the use of these transfusions.

Early Detection

Szewczyki, investigating nine cases, noted that it occurred among infants who had poor colour and laboured breathing as a result of oxygen deficiency. As a result their stay in oxygen cots was prolonged. In such cases he claims to be able to induce early signs of the disease within 24 to 48 hours by removing them from their oxygen cots. He also showed that he could then abolish these early signs by replacing the infant in oxygen. As a result he believes that retrolental fibroplasia is due to a sub-clinical oxygen deficiency. This deficiency singles out the eye because at that stage of its development, the incompletely developed retina needs and uses oxygen at a greater rate than at any other time in its life, because it is growing faster and has a higher metabolism then than at any other time.

What is retrolental fibroplasia ? When the condition is advanced, the mother usually presents herself at the infant welfare clinic when the infant is three to nine months old. She gives a history of having had a premature infant weighing three and a half pounds or less. She will tell you that the infant dislikes light, is constantly rubbing the eyes with the back of its hands and that it keeps its eyes closed most of the time. If she is more observant than most, she will have noticed that the eyes are sunken and small and that a greyish membrane is obscuring the aperture of the pupil. On examination it will be found that the infant is almost blind in both eyes. The eyes are smaller than normal with the lower eyelids sunken. There is photophobia, rubbing of the eyes, searching nystagmus, and patches of vascularised fibrous tissue appearing behind the lens, impermeable to light, with a resulting complete bilateral blindness. The condition is almost always bilateral, but arrest can occur at any stage, so that as an end result one sees all degrees of blindness.

First Signs

At an earlier stage the disease can be detected by an alert nurse in the premature ward, by watching for the earliest signs. With a premature infant whose birth weight is three and a half pounds or less and whose colour and respiration suggest anoxia, photophobia and rubbing of the eyes are signs that should arouse suspicion and merit ophthalmic examination. In passing it may be mentioned that photophobia is not at all unusual in premature infants who have not acquired retrolental fibropasia and who are quite normal.

It is known that blindness is caused by a membrane which grows behind the lens. The means by which this membrane forms however are not completely understood, though certain steps are known. There are no signs during the first two or three weeks of extra-uterine life. At about the third week, ophthalmoscopic examination of an affected infant will show slight dilatation of the retinal vessels. Later there is a marked dilatation of the retinal veins, with an increased tortuosity of the retinal arteries. This is followed by blurring and oedema of the disc and a grey elevation of the retina at the periphery. Later, as the disease progresses, the anterior part of the swollen retina creeps over the space behind the lens (the retrolental space) and by extension and fusion of the peripheral folds of the retina a complete membrane is formed. This membrane is impermeable to light. As mentioned before, all cases do not progress uniformly. If the membrane is complete, then complete bilateral blindness occurs. If the process is arrested at an earlier stage, the degree of blindness that results will depend in some measure on the extent to which the membrane has grown over the retrolental space, and the amount of retina detached. The more the lens is covered, the greater the degree of blindness. At a later date, after blindness is well established, secondary changes can occur. Ocular tension can arise, the cornea cloud and the eye enlarge.

The treatment is not well established, and at best is not hopeful as yet. Our greatest efforts should be directed to prophylaxis, with emphasis on the prevention of premature delivery in order to bring the foetus to a birth weight higher than three and a half pounds. Every ounce that an infant weighs beyond this weight immeasurably lessens its chance of developing this disease.

When an infant is born at or below this critical weight, in addition to the routine treatment for premature infants the following precautions may be of some value. The nursery is kept as dark as is practicable. Anoxia is combated by maintaining the infant in an atmosphere with a high oxygen level, encouraging respiration and treating anaemia. If blood transfusions are considered advisable, fresh blood of the appropriate group is preferable to stored pooled blood. Large doses of Vitamin A are best avoided. Vitamins D and E are alleged to be beneficial.

A careful watch is kept for early clinical signs. Frequent ophthalmoscopic examinations of susceptible infants to detect the early signs of dilatation of the retinal vessels are advisable. When early signs appear, treatment with ACTH (where available) may be of value, though reports of response of this condition to ACTH are extremely variable and no definite conclusion can be drawn as to its efficacy, though on theoretical grounds it should be of use because of its ability to prevent the formation of fibrous tissue.

When the disease is well established, treatment is directed towards the prevention of glaucoma by administering a miotic such as one per cent. pilocarpine daily.

Summary

(1) It is evident that a new disease has developed.

(2) First noticed in the United States, it is now beginning to appear in a sporadic and at present unpredictable manner in Britain and elsewhere.

(3) It is a disease of premature infants, mainly affecting those weighing three and a half pounds or less. Cases have been reported in full term infants, but they are rare.

(4) Our main attack on the condition is obstetric and must be directed towards the prevention of prematurity. Every effort should be made where possible to carry each pregnancy far enough to ensure as high a birth weight as possible. This is an old and well founded obstetric principle; the advent of retrolental fibroplasia has given it a sharper point.

(5) As no treatment is at hand for curing the established condition, and as the incidence appears to be rising, it behoves every nurse in contact with premature infants to be constantly on the alert for the earliest signs.

(6) If the disease is not discovered early and arrested, the well-nigh intolerable strain of partial or complete blindness can be placed on our fellow beings as well as on the social organisations at present dealing with the blind.

A Case History

Premature Quadruplets with Retrolental Fibroplasia

by Miss M. J. Butcher, S.R.N., while a pupil midwife at Mason's Hill Maternity Unit of Bromley Hospital.

Three days old: the three surviving babies in oxygen cots, with their nurses.

QUADRUPLETS were born prematurely to Mrs. X, at Bromley Hospital on August 20, 1951. The mother, aged 27, is only four feet ten inches tall, of slight build and weighs 7 st. 10 lb. In 1947 she had her first baby, a boy, weighing seven and a half pounds, after a labour lasting four hours.

The last normal period was in October 1950 followed by a miscarriage of seven weeks in December, 1950. Mrs. X became pregnant again and attended a local clinic where her doctor, on examination, suspected triplets. She was X-rayed and the report was as follows: 'The X-ray examination in this case demonstrates a quadruple pregnancy. Two of the foetuses are very well demonstrated and two not so well but I do not find anything on the films to suggest foetal abnormalities.'

The mother was then booked for a hospital confinement. At about 28 weeks she became breathless on the least exertion and was admitted to hospital on July 12, 1951, for rest and observation. On admission her temperature, pulse and respiration were normal, her blood pressure was 116/76 and her urine contained no albumen.

Treatment consisted of rest in bed; ample diet with extra vitamins A, B, C, D, E and K, also iron, and Stilboestrol, 1 mg. daily, increasing gradually to 5 mg. daily, and continued until labour commenced.

The patient felt much better for the rest, she slept very well, temperature, pulse, respiration and blood pressure remained normal, and the urine was free from albumen except on one occasion. By August 14 her abdominal girth was 41 inches.

Labour

On August 20 labour commenced with spontaneous rupture of membranes at 3.10 a.m., soon after which pains began. The blood pressure was 108/78. Blood was taken for cross-matching but was not required. An intramuscular injection of Synkavite, 1 c.c., was given. At 6.45 a.m. the pains were fairly strong occurring every four minutes. The patient was relaxing very well and was not distressed. At 8 a.m. a hypodermic injection of atropine, gr. $\frac{1}{100}$, was given. At 8.50 a.m. episiotomy was performed.

First baby—Tony (vertex presentation, right occipito-posterior), was born at 8.55 a.m. and he cried well. Weight (on third day) was 2 lb. 5 oz. Length 14 inches. The next foetus was lying transversely and the legs were brought down under a general anaesthetic, from which the mother recovered before the birth of the next babies.

Second baby—Denise (breech presentation, right sacro-posterior position), was born at 11.7 a.m. and cried well. Weight 2 lb. 8 oz. Length 15½ inches.

Third baby—Derek (vertex presentation, right occipito-anterior position), followed at 11.19 a.m. but he did not cry. He had severe white asphyxia and jerky occasional respirations started after five minutes. Brown mucus was constantly aspirated from his air passages but he died after a cyanotic attack 11½ hours later. Weight 3 lb. 2 oz. Length 15½ inches.

Fourth baby—Georgina (vertex presentation, right occipito-posterior position), was born at 11.26 a.m. She was cyanosed but respirations became established after ten minutes. Weight 1 lb. 15 oz. Length 14 inches.

All the babies were placed in oxygen tents and intramuscular injections of Synkavite, 5 mg., were given.

At 11.35 a.m. the placenta was delivered complete. Ergometrine, 0.25 mg. intravenously and 0.25 mg. intramuscularly, was given. The uterus retracted well and the total blood loss was 2 oz. The pulse rate was 80 and of good volume. The perineum was sutured with catgut and two silk sutures.

At 11.38 a.m. an intramuscular injection of Omnopon, gr. ½, was given and a tight abdominal binder applied. The patient's temperature was 98°F. pulse 60, respirations 18 and blood pressure 128/90. Her condition, after her eight and a half hour labour, was quite satisfactory and she slept for a time. The puerperium was uneventful, and she was discharged at the end of three weeks, and sent breast milk to the hospital daily until lactation became inadequate.

Nursing Care

A special nursery was darkened and the room temperature kept at 90°F. for two weeks. Then the temperature was gradually reduced until it was 70°F. at the end of the second month. The babies were nursed in oxygen tents, with the oxygen flowing at 3½ litres per minute, continuously for three weeks and then gradually for shorter periods until the tents were removed at the end of their first month of life. To maintain their rectal temperatures at 99°F. it was necessary to keep the cot temperature at 94°-96°F. and this required frequent changing of the hot water bottles.

The babies were nursed without clothing while in the oxygen tents and it was fascinating to watch their many movements. They moved their arms and legs quickly and very jerkily in all directions. They cried loudly at times; they sucked their fingers, they yawned, they sneezed and they sometimes opened their eyes. All passed urine frequently but did not pass meconium until the fourth day when fine catheters, lubricated with olive oil were gently passed into their rectums.

Their first bath was not given until they were seven weeks old; before that only necessary cleansing was performed and this was done with olive oil.

Each baby developed one or two tiny mild, septic spots during the first week, and so all cot sheets and napkins were sterilised and after a course of oral penicillin the spots disappeared.

Feeding

Feeding commenced on the second day, beginning with 1½ drachms of ⅛ strength normal saline with dextrose, given two-hourly. On the third day the dextrose saline feeds were alternated with expressed breast milk, after the fourth day all feeds were of breast milk. All three babies sucked very well from Belcroy feeders and were never tube-fed. They were fed on their right sides with their heads well raised and a careful watch was kept for regurgitation. One hour after feeds they were turned on to their left sides, to prevent pneumonia.

Two-hourly feeding was continued for five weeks by feeder, followed by three-hourly feeding for five weeks by bottle. When nearly two months old, the babies were put to the breast once a day and made good attempts to suck, but their mother's lactation was inadequate, so from the age of ten weeks they were gradually put on to feeds of half-cream Cow and Gate milk, four-hourly, with no night feeds.

They gained weight steadily from the first seven days. When one month old they were nearly 1 lb. above birth weight.

When two months old they were about 2¼ lb. above birth weight, and at three months old they weighed as follows: Tony 6 lb. 2 oz., Denise 6 lb. 10 oz., Georgina 6 lb.

In the second week ascorbic acid, 25 mg., was given twice daily. During the third week, Adexolin, 1 minim, was given four-hourly alternating with mistura ferri et ammonium citrate pro infantis 5 minims. Fifth week. Mistura ferri et ammonium citrate, 15 minims, twice a day with Abidec, 15 minims, once a day. During and since the tenth week orange juice and cod liver oil have been given.

Georgina had a mild discharge from one eye on the fourth day, which cleared in 24 hours after an intensive course of penicillin eye drops. The other babies had no eye infection. All the babies were seen by an eye specialist at Georgina, Tony and Denise at six months.

11 weeks old for a routine examination. It was found that all three had retrolental fibroplasia, in different stages. This was later confirmed by two other eye specialists.

This disease may occur in full-term infants who have other defects due to ante-natal maldevelopment, but it is much more common in premature infants who weigh less than three pounds at birth.

An opaque, vascular membrane forms behind the lens after birth, and later the retina becomes detached and the eyes become blind, although they were normal at birth. The cause of this disease has not yet been proved, and no treatment has been found that is successful in every case.

The three surviving quads are blind, but they are otherwise healthy, happy, and lovely babies.

[I would like to thank Dr. J. O'Reilly for permission to publish this case history, and Sister Snelling for her help.]

Administrative and Clerical Staffs Whitley Council

Home Wardens

THE Ministry of Health Circular R.H.B.(52)33/H.M.C.(52)30/B.G.(52)32, states that in Staffing the Hospitals it was recommended that experienced women officers or wardens, not necessarily nurses should be appointed to take charge of nurses' homes. Many hospitals have appointed such officers to be in charge not only of nurses' homes but also of residential quarters for domestic and other staff.

Organisation and duties: amongst the duties which may appropriately be undertaken by a warden are:

Management of the home.
Control of the catering services in the home.
Control of the domestic staff working in the home.
Welfare of the residents.
The encouragement of social and educational activities.

Whether all or only some of these duties are undertaken by the warden at a particular home is a matter which must be determined individually by each hospital authority and will depend upon local circumstances such as the proximity of the home to the hospital and the extent of the duties, if any, performed in the home by the Domestic Superintendent, Catering Officer, Housekeeper-Caterer or Administrative Sister, employed in the hospital. Whether the warden is responsible to the matron or to some other authority is a question which needs consideration in the light of local conditions, e.g., the number of hospitals served by the home or homes; in any case close consultation with the matron is essential.

Qualifications: the qualifications required for such a post are, in general, a good education and social background together with wide experience in dealing with young people, preferably under residential conditions. Where there is responsibility for catering, the qualifications should preferably include one of these indicated in paragraph 2 of the Appendix to memorandum R.H.B.(50)18/H.M.C.(50)18/B.G.(50)16.

Salaries: the Administrative and Clerical Staffs Whitley Council has agreed salaries for posts of home wardens. The salaries do not apply to home sisters so designated in accordance with the definition of that grade in N.M.C. Circular No. 18 though they do apply to any trained nurses or midwives who may be appointed as home wardens in accordance with the definition in paragraph 1 of A.C. Circular No. 23.

In the Minister's opinion, homes with up to 30 residents will not normally justify the appointment of a warden and the Department should in future be consulted before any such appointment is made. Any warden already in post in a home with up to 30 residents should be paid the salary agreed by the Whitley Council without reference to the Ministry, but the Ministry should be consulted if the post becomes vacant and the Board or Committee wish to make a new appointment.

Salaries and Conditions of Service

A.C. Circular No. 23 states that the Administrative and Clerical Staffs Council have agreed salary scales and conditions of service for home wardens. These apply to all officers, whether or not possessing a nursing or midwifery qualification, in charge of homes, hostels or other residential quarters for nursing, domestic or other staff, except those who are required by their employing authority to be a S.R.N. or S.C.M. and to undertake some nursing or midwifery duties in addition to the normal duties of a home warden; (these officers come under the Nurses and Midwives Council).

Salaries:

The warden always has general responsibility for the management of the home and welfare of the residents. Salary scale (a) should be paid when the warden is also responsible for the supervision of the cooking and serving in the home of mid-day meals (or the equivalent meals taken at another time of day by night or shift duty staff); she may or may not also be responsible for planning menus and buying food. Other wardens should be paid scale (b).

No. of residents in Home	Scale (a)	Scale (b)
Up to 30	£400 × £15 — £460	—
31 — 75	£440 × £15 — £500	£400 × £15 — £460
76 — 150	£480 × £15 — £540	£440 × £15 — £500
151 — 250	£520 × £20 — £600	£480 × £15 — £540
Over 250	£560 × £20 — £640	£510 × £20 — £590

London Weighting and Charges for Residence:

Wardens who are resident shall be subject to a standard national charge of £130 for residence and shall not be paid London weighting. If exceptionally a warden is not resident, she shall be paid London weighting of £30 (£20 if under age 26) if employed in the Metropolitan Police Area. These arrangements are provisional pending any general agreement on charges for residence and/or London weighting.

Other Conditions of Service

(a) Hours: wardens are expected to work whatever hours are necessary for the efficient performance of their duties and are not eligible for payments for overtime or extra duty. From the nature of the work there can be no fixed hours but these should not normally be expected to exceed an average of 96 hours a fortnight.

(b) Annual Leave: 18 days' annual leave with six statutory and national holidays or other days in lieu.

(c) Other conditions of service: as for administrative staff.

The new scales apply as from May 1, 1951.

Assimilation to the New Scales

Officers in post on May 1, 1951 shall enter the new scales at the minimum or at a point £50 above the salary they were receiving on May 1 (including the value previously placed on residential emoluments where appropriate), whichever is the more favourable, provided that the maximum of the new scale is not exceeded.

Officers appointed since May 1 shall enter the new scales according to the normal point-of-entry rules in A.C. Circular No. 7 except that any officer already appointed at a higher salary shall enter the new scale at his existing salary and proceed from that point on future incremental dates by the increments of the new scale to the maximum of the new scale.

In hospitals where the employing authority has not adopted a common incremental date for administrative and clerical staff incremental dates will be as follows:

(a) Officers who were not at the maximum of their old scales on May 1, 1951, and who are entering the new scales with an assimilation increase of £50, keep their former incremental dates;

Officers in post at the date of publication of this circular (March 21, 1952) shall have the option to retain the salary scale and conditions of service on which they were employed on that date if they so wish.

Law Notes for Nurses—VI.

Detention and Discharge of Patients: Visitors and Trespassers

DETENTION and discharge of patients are matters of great importance, for a mistake may lay the hospital open to serious criticism and possible legal action. In this article we shall discuss these so far as they concern the nurse. Readers are warned that only the barest outline is given as regards mental patients and mental defectives.

Detention in Hospital

The general rule is that no one may be detained in hospital or anywhere else without lawful authority and it is not sufficient justification to say that the detention was in the patient's own interests. The most common exceptions to this general rule which may concern hospitals are mental patients and mental defectives detained under proper authority; patients suffering from a notifiable infectious disease, and certain other patients unable otherwise to have proper care and attention and who are a danger to themselves and others, but in these cases there must be a Justice's order. A patient in the custody of the police, such as an injured cat-burglar who is brought to the hospital for treatment, is not detained by the hospital but by the police.

There is one further apparent exception to the general rule to be mentioned, the patient who is light-headed or delirious. If such a patient insists that he will not stay, his protests, if it seems that his real mind is not in them, may be ignored. But in all other cases, if a patient—other than a child—insists on discharging himself, he must be allowed to go. Consequently, if such determination is expressed to the ward sister or to one of the nurses, it should thereupon be communicated to matron and to the appropriate member of the medical staff so that all proper steps can be taken to encourage the patient to reconsider his decision, and if he will not, to arrange his discharge.

Mental Patients

It is quite beyond the scope of these notes to enter with any fullness into the law relating to the custody and control of mental patients and mental defectives, particularly relating to formalities of certification and detention which should not ordinarily be the province of the nurse. It is important that nurses, particularly sisters in charge of wards for such patients or defectives should be alive to certain legal responsibilities which may be summarised as follows:

1. Mechanical restraint is only authorised for the purpose of medical or surgical treatment or to prevent a patient injuring himself or others and then only by means approved by the Board of Control. The grounds for restraint and the means must be set out in a medical certificate as soon as possible. A full record is to be kept and a return made quarterly to the Board of Control. Any breach of these rules is a misdemeanour punishable by law.

2. Any patient detained in a mental hospital or a mental deficiency institution may write to the Lord Chancellor, to any Judge in Lunacy (now a Judge of the Court of Protection), to the Minister of Health, to the Board of Control or any Commissioner thereof, to the person who signed the reception order or on whose petition the order was made, or who placed him in the institution or certified house, to the Chancery Visitors or any Chancery Visitor or to any other Visitor or Visitors (that is, official Visitors) or to the hospital management committee or board of governors or any member thereof and any such letter must be forwarded unopened.

Every patient also has the right of a personal and private interview with a visiting commissioner, or 'visitor', on request, at any visit which may be made to the institution.

Furthermore there has ordinarily to be exhibited a notice explaining this right of correspondence and, where that is not done, there should be exhibited in the wards a brief and simply worded notice telling patients that they have certain rights with regard to correspondence and interviews with official visitors which will be explained to them by the nurse in charge of the ward on request. A full notice should be in the possession of the nurse who could show and explain it as desired. Any breach of these rules is a punishable misdemeanour.

3. The following are some other misdemeanours punishable by law with greater or less severity: obstructing commissioners and other 'visitors' ill-treatment or wilful neglect of patients; assisting or conniving at escape; abuses of female patients; employment of males in custody of females except in case of emergency.

4. A nurse should not be a party to a mental patient or mental defective detained in a hospital or institution making a will without express authority from the medical superintendent or other officer responsible for compliance with the law. (N.B.—Maybe the consent of the Court would be necessary or—in other cases—the rules of the hospital will make the consent of the hospital committee necessary). She should neither allow nor connive at such a will being witnessed. If, however, a patient does make an unauthorised will it should on no account be destroyed for that would be a grave crime, but the matter should be reported to the responsible officer who will take whatever action is necessary. If any patient or defective does express the desire to make a will it should be reported without delay so that the medical superintendent can decide on appropriate action.

Self-Discharge of Patient

If a patient insists on discharging himself, he should be given, preferably by the consultant in charge of the case or, failing that, by a resident or by a senior member of the nursing staff, the usual warning that he ought not to go and that the hospital and its staff take no responsibility for the consequences. Further, if the patient is suffering from an infectious disease, he should be warned that he will be committing a criminal offence if he exposes others to the danger of infection or travels in a public service vehicle such as a train, bus or taxi. Finally, if he persists in leaving, he should be requested to sign the hospital form to the effect that the above warning has been given to him. But if he refuses to sign he cannot be detained till he does; all that can be done is for the person who has given the warning to record the fact and sign the record which should be witnessed by someone—normally a nurse—who was present.

The outpatient who discharges himself does not as a rule present any problem since what usually happens is that the patient just fails to attend, but if a patient intimates that he does not intend to continue the treatment there are grounds for suggesting the wisdom of the same procedure as for inpatients, that is, making it clear that he is discharging himself against advice and, if possible, getting a form of acknowledgment signed. If the patient refuses, the procedure should be as for inpatients in like circumstances.

A word here to outpatient and casualty sisters. If a patient who has either discharged himself or who has been discharged because of his non-co-operation or misconduct presents himself for treatment or readmission he should not forthwith, be regarded as a trespasser, and it is ordinarily most unwise to dismiss him without his being seen by a member of the medical staff, if only because either his original condition may have become aggravated or he may

Leonardo da Vinci

WE are presenting a selection of drawings and one or two studies from the wonderful Leonardo da Vinci Exhibition now being held in London to celebrate his birth, 500 years ago.

Details of Leonardo's life and the many arts in which he excelled have been so fully covered in the national press that we propose, in the main, to concentrate on his anatomical drawings because of their special interest to nurses. Most of them illustrate beauty of form and feeling as well as of fact; others may not be so beautiful in line but are scientifically interesting.

Leonardo, an illegitimate child, was born at Vinci near Florence, in 1452. He grew to be a scientist, visionary, artist, engineer. His penetrating eye noted, the artist gave form to his observations and his analytical mind translated into scientific fact the wonders of living things. Plants, birds, animals, shells, and natural phenomena gave him ideas which led him to upset many of the precepts held by authorities up to that time. Our choice of pictures has been governed by many reasons, therefore. Some illustrate new discoveries; some reveal profound philosophical enquiry, others illustrate his emphasis that all living matter was a whole. He peeled an onion and his thoughts flew to the skull of man, also with its many layers; he watched the waves beating against the seashore and his mind and pen turned to the tresses of a woman's hair; the flight of birds led him to anticipate the flight of man.

The sculptor Antonio Pollaiuolo taught Leonardo that it was impossible to depict the human body in art without knowing its structure. It was he who must

These sketches compare well with similar sketches in modern textbooks of anatomy.*

The script discusses the relations of various rgans to this senso commune—' (it) has below it n a perpendicular line the uvula where one tastes ood, at a distance of two fingers, and it is elevated bove the tube of the lung and above the orifice of the heart for the space of a foot . . . Similarly if you will cut through the head of a man in the middle, you will first cut the hairs, then the coating and the muscular flesh, and the pericranium, then the cranium, and within the dura mater, and the pia mater and the cerebrum, then again the pia and the dura mater and the rete mirabile and the fundamentum of that, the bone.' The other drawings are studies of the eyeball, optic nerves and ventricles of the brain.*

Like Harvey he studied the development of the chick in the egg but no drawings of this process by him are known to exist. He many times shows the foetal membranes, and the placenta in animals, and draws a scheme of the maternal and foetal circulation with considerable accuracy. Here he shows the full term foetus in the womb. In several drawings of this subject the foetus occupies the breech position—all were presumably made from the same body. It will be noted that the placenta shows the scattered cotyledons of the cow—not the human discoidal type. Most of the remaining drawings on the page are studies in the relations between the foetal and maternal cotyledons.*

have inspired Leonardo's visits to the hospital of Santa Maria Nuova where he spent long hours dissecting and measuring, The results of his researches, carefully drawn and copiously annotated in his famous mirror writing, explained his findings; he accepted nothing he could not prove for himself. Sometimes he drew accurately but did not understand completely the functions. For 24 years he carried on his anatomical studies and dissected some 30 bodies.

' But it was not enough to paint the shapes of man ', said Leonardo, ' the good artist must also paint their souls '. So Leonardo wandered in the streets of Florence, and there he found subjects for his drawings—and paintings, which, alas, have suffered sadly the ravages of time.

Sir Kenneth Clark's excellent broadcast entitled The Demonic Genius of Leonardo da Vinci discusses some of the conclusions which Leonardo drew from his examination of living things: " that all creation followed a cycle of growth, decay, absorption and rebirth. He found evidence of it in human anatomy, in animals in plants; and his studies of shells and fossils in the Alps convinced him that even the solid-seeming earth was in a state of flux. He wrote in one of his notebooks: ' It has a spirit of growth. Its flesh is the soil, its bones the stratification of rocks which form the mountains its cartilage the tufa, its blood the springs of water; and the increase and decrease of blood in the pulse is represented, in the earth, by the ebb and flow of the sea ".

It is rarely such gifts of hand and brain are found in one man. This Quincentenary Exhibition does full justice to Leonardo's genius.

be suffering from some new complaint or injury. To refuse aid in such cases would be ethically highly improper and for our present purposes, therefore, we need not enter more closely into the niceties of the legal position on which authority appears to be lacking. Suffice it to say that, apart alike from ethics and law, it has to be remembered that the Minister of Health is responsible to Parliament for the national hospital service, and so improper refusal of treatment might be the subject of parliamentary criticism and even of official enquiry.

Births and Deaths in Hospital

Usually, the responsibility for registering a birth or a death is undertaken, on default of relatives, by the chief administrative officer of the hospital as 'occupier of the house', he being the representative of the hospital authority. In law, however, anyone present at the birth or death may, in default of relatives and of the householder, be required to register the event. Hence a midwife or nurse may have the responsibility.

Patients' Visitors

The responsibility of the hospital and its staff in respect of injuries to patients' visitors and other persons lawfully on hospital premises is substantially the same as in respect of injuries to patients (actually the liability for injuries due to defective premises may be slightly less in respect of persons only on hospital premises as guests, for example, at a nurses' home dance, but for present purposes the distinction can be ignored), though no question of injuries during treatment will arise.

Injuries are most likely to arise through carelessness in domestic arrangements (e.g., mats on slippery floors or objects left where they are likely to trip someone up) or owing to defective premises, e.g. the perilously worn step, or the ceiling which falls. The kinds of things I have cited as examples are perhaps not likely to happen in hospitals but departmental and ward sisters should be ever watchful for possible causes of accident and remove them.

If an accident does occur a record of the same kind as for accidents to patients should if possible be made at the time.

Trespassers

Generally speaking anyone who is on hospital premises without the express or implied consent of the hospital authority is a trespasser, except certain people such as gas-meter readers and factory inspectors who have a right to enter the premises for their proper purposes. Likewise, anyone who, being properly on the premises (for example, a patient's visitor), refuses to leave on being required to do so, becomes a trespasser.

Occasionally it becomes necessary to take active steps to get rid of a trespasser, for example, one who becomes noisy or abusive or otherwise hinders or disturbs the work of the hospital.

The position is that any trespasser who, being ordered to leave, refuses to do so, can be removed provided that no more force is used than is reasonably necessary.

When possible a ward sister or anyone similarly placed, who has a trespasser to deal with would be well advised to seek the assistance of matron or the chief administrative officer and, if time permits, it may save trouble if the help of the police is sought.

There may be times, however, when immediate action is called for, for example, if a trespasser in a ward of very sick patients is being noisy or otherwise creating serious disturbance, or is annoying one particular patient. It is then clearly the duty of the ward sister or other responsible officer to do what is necessary. Usually this amounts to unequivocally requiring the trespasser to leave and on refusal or failure to do so, instructing a porter (or porters) to escort the trespasser off the premises, warning them to use no more force than is necessary. It may also be suggested that if the trespasser is a woman and she can satisfactorily be removed by nurses or other female members of the staff, without undue risk to themselves, that course is desirable—but it is not a legal requirement.

Nurses from many countries at a Conference in Geneva.

Sidelights on a Geneva Conference

A 'working conference' organised by the Nursing Section of the World Health Organisation has been held in Geneva and eleven nurses, a professor of education, a social science consultant and a hospital administrator from ten different countries met together. What the conference achieved is a little difficult to assess so soon after the conclusion of the sessions that occupied two very busy weeks. It can however be very definitely stated that all the conference members appreciated the opportunity afforded of meeting 'opposite numbers' from a variety of countries and of talking over new ideas and old problems.

The Palais des Nations is a wonderful setting for a conference. It stands in a beautiful park, sloping gently down to the Lake of Geneva, with a view of the Mont Blanc range in the distance. In March the peak of Mont Blanc is still hidden in the clouds, but on one or two fairly clear days the wonderful snowy range glittered in the spring sunshine and the lake below was an intense blue. In these pleasant surroundings the headquarters of WHO provides every comfort for work and for refreshment. Many discussions were continued in the cafeteria, in the restaurant at lunch time or round the tea tables when the conference decided that the English cup of tea was a good excuse for an afternoon break.

Any leisure hours that could be found were most profitably and enjoyably employed. Miss Olive Baggallay and her colleagues with the secretarial staff of the Nursing Section not only guided the conference in its working hours but were equally concerned that the members enjoyed their visit. Geneva is a place of great historic interest. A tablet near one of the many bridges spanning the river Rhône commemorates the passage of Caesar's army through Geneva on the way to the conquest of Gaul in the year 58 B.C. We were very grateful for a special visit, arranged by Mlle. Hentsch, to the ancient Hôtel de Ville, which is full of treasures. We were shown the 'Alabama room' in which the first Geneva Convention was signed.

WHO staff booked seats for us all at a recital by the Weiner Oktett in the charming little Theatre du Cour de St Pierre which reminded me somehow of Georgian Bath. A different, but absorbingly interesting visit to the headquarters of the Committee of the International Red Cross Society at the invitation of Mlle. Odier, gave us an opportunity of admiring the superbly efficient organisation of the prisoner-of-war information service. The staff who carried out this humanitarian work during the Second World War hold a very proud record indeed. They never on any occasion told a family that a man posted as missing was dead when he was in fact alive or vice versa. What an achievement that was in the face of the difficulties and obstacles encountered can hardly be realised. Round the tea table afterwards Mlle. Odier told us something of her own work, one part of which is to disseminate information to all workers under the Red Cross about their duties and their rights if they are taken prisoner in time of war.

We had some most delightful parties in the homes of our kind hosts. Miss Marjorie Duvillard, the Director of the Bon Secours School of Nursing, introduced us to the national dish, fondue. This is cheese, or rather cheeses, since a variety are included to give the right flavour, melted in wine in a large earthenware crock. On another day, a wet Sunday morning, the party set out optimistically carrying packed lunches, for the village of Romainmôtier. Romainmôtier has the most perfect example of a church in the Romanesque style to be found in Switzerland. It is in fact three churches built on and around each other. Only in the early years of this century was the plaster chipped away from the ceiling of the nave to disclose the perfect freshness of the colour decorations of the 12th century.

On April 1 the conference had the pleasure of entertaining their guests to dinner at a country auberge just across the French frontier.

At the end of two busy weeks we were a real family party and the Friday evening which saw some of our long-distance members set off on their journeys to India, Brazil, the United States and Canada was quite a sad occasion.

EDUCATIONAL FUND APPEAL

President: The Countess Mountbatten of Burma, C.I., G.B.E., D.C.V.O.

Appeal Council: Chairman—Lady Heald

Secretary—Mrs. C. M. Stocken, S.R.N.

LADY Heald was in the chair at the April meeting of the Joint Council of the Appeal, and before starting the business of the meeting she extended a welcome to Mrs. Woodman on her return after absence due to illness, and to Mr. E. O. Durlacher, on his first attendance at a Council meeting.

The Appeal Secretary, Mrs. C. M. Stocken, reported that she had recently visited College Branches in Coventry, Birmingham, Chesterfield, Sheffield, Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds and Newcastle, and the interest and support met with had been most encouraging; those Branches which had not yet reached their targets expressed renewed determination to do so and were making plans for activities which would achieve this object. During the visit to Chesterfield the Clay Cross Company was visited on the suggestion of the Chesterfield Branch, and as a result a donation of £100 to the Appeal Fund was generously made by the Company.

Ipswich v. Tottenham Hotspur

Mrs. Stocken also reported a kind offer from the directors of the Ipswich Football Club to devote the proceeds of a match in connection with the Ipswich Hospital Football Cup to the Appeal Fund, provided the latter could arrange for a first-class League Division team to visit them. Mrs. Stocken had been fortunate enough to secure the services of the Tottenham Hotspur team to play on this occasion. This should prove a notable sporting event and all nurses in Ipswich and district are asked to spread the news among their friends and relations of the match which is to take place on the evening of Monday, May 5.

The Chairman reported that the Board of Directors of Messrs. Schweppes Ltd. had promised to devote half the proceeds from entrance to their grotto at the Festival Pleasure Gardens at Battersea during the coming season to the Appeal Fund, and Mr. F. C. Hooper was asked to express to his co-Directors on the Board of Schweppes Ltd. the appreciation of the Council for this kind offer.

Miss Adams, Financial Secretary to the College, in the absence of the Hon. Treasurer presented the financial report covering the past two months. This showed a sum of £14,386 received from the Branches during the period, a large proportion of this sum representing the proceeds of the collections made at the A.B.C. cinemas at the showing of the College film.

The recent luncheon held in Coventry was reported on by Mr. Sherriff; he also announced that a civic luncheon was to be given by the Lord Mayor of Leeds in that city on May 9.

It was agreed that the next meeting of the Joint Council of the Appeal should be held on Tuesday, June 10, at 4 p.m.

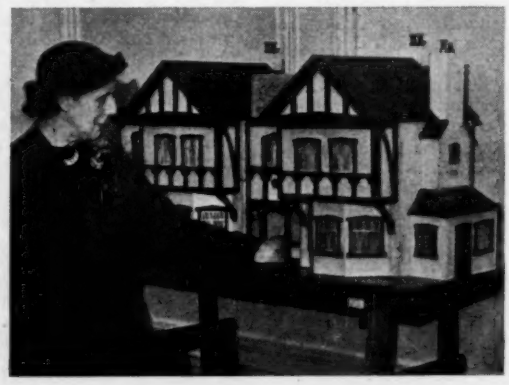
Nurses Council Meeting

A meeting of the Nurses Council was held at headquarters on April 22 under the chairmanship of Dame Louisa Wilkinson, D.B.E., R.R.C.

Reports from the area representatives showed continuing activity in most parts of the country. Mrs. C. M. Stocken, Appeal Secretary, reported that the Branches of the Northern Area were 'not inactive'. The Midland Area also reported much activity. The Western Area reported a less good response. There were 28 branches said Miss Seth Smith, representative of the Western Area, many of which were very small; the Oxford Branch, however, was now very active.

The Student Nurses' Association reported that they had about £4,500 in hand, but large sums were still held by the units. Mrs. Stocken said that she would be visiting Wales in the near future.

Lady Elgin examines the 'Dolls' House' which will tour Scotland in support of the Educational Fund Appeal.



Scotland

News from Scotland this month is mainly concerned with the potentials of the doll's house which has been loaned to the Appeal Council by Lady Elgin, President of the Appeal in Scotland. This doll's house, which was on view at 44, Heriot Row on the day of the April meeting of the Scottish Board, had been beautifully furnished and fitted to show some aspects of an education department of a College of Nursing by the students of the McCrone Pre-nursing School at Fod House, Dunfermline. This model College will be taken round in the new ' Mayflower ' car presented by Standard Motors to the Scottish Board as announced in the Nursing Times. Already the car has been booked for Edinburgh (April 26), Glasgow (May 10), Dumfries (June 1); Perth (June 6), Broomhall (June 14), and Lauriston Castle Fête, in Edinburgh (June 28). The Honorary Treasurer has been busy collecting gifts for a competition, and has, among other valuable prizes, a television set to offer. The competition which is being arranged by the members of the Appeal Council as a national one should prove a great help to all area ' targets '.

News from the Branches

The North Western Metropolitan Branch. Having achieved the magnificent total of £5,023, which is more than double their target of £2,500, the Appeal Committee is closing down. Miss I. H. Charley said at the Council meeting that the work of collecting had been delightful and had provided a welcome occasion to bring together the many hard working members of the Branch. The resource and hard work of members and the encouragement and inspiration of honorary officers have dramatically demonstrated what can be achieved.

Swindon Branch. Having exceeded their target the Branch is closing its Appeal Committee. More than £1,000 has been sent to headquarters, and there are still monies to be collected. At a ceremony in Swindon recently Lady Tritton, president of the Branch was presented with a gift of a pen and pencil in recognition of her untiring work on behalf of the Appeal.

Liverpool Branch. At the Branches Standing Committee in Bradford last month, the Branch presented a cheque of £1,000 to the Fund. The total sum paid into headquarters now amounts to £4,552 3s. 7d. This magnificent sum includes the following amounts contributed by individual hospitals and Student Nurse Units: £401, Alder Hey Hospital; £253, Bootle General Hospital; £281, Broadgreen Hospital; £203, Birkenhead General Hospital; £215, The Radium Institute; £442 Royal Infirmary (including £40 from Student Nurses' Unit); £352, Sefton General Hospital. We regret that space does not allow the mention of contributions from all the hospitals, representing as they do, so much enthusiasm and hard work.

Scunthorpe Branch. One of the smallest Branches in the country has now achieved its target of £500. £60 of this amount has been raised by the personal efforts of members, and the remainder by a house to house collection, a cinema collection, a bazaar, whist and beetle drives, a concert and two dancing displays, all of which the public supported most generously. Members are now busy making arrangements for Alexandra Rose Day on June 28.

Individual donations include the following: An industrial nurse member has collected £77 in a ' mile of pennies '. Miss K. D. Roberts has sent £20 towards the Private Nurses' Section target. A male student nurse has been sending to the College for the Fund £2 per week since last October. It represents the amount he would have paid to his employing authorities for board and lodging if he had been resident, and his total contribution has now reached over £44.

The following donations have been received from other Branches: Northampton £6, Redruth £19, Westmorland £325, Bradford £3, Great Yarmouth £100, Lancaster, Morecambe and District £250, North East Metropolitan (Whipps Cross Hospital) £50, Nottingham £1,020.

Student Nurses' Association contributions: Torbay Hospital £30, St. Stephen's Hospital £4, Colindale Hospital £5, Memorial Hospital, Woolwich £3, Wanstead Hospital £5, Black Notley Hospital £7, East Suffolk and Ipswich Hospital, hospital dance £10.

The Village Helps

Much of the large amount already raised for the Educational Fund Appeal by loyal College members and their friends consists of small sums made by satisfying the insatiable appetite of the public for whist-drives, jumble sales and similar activities. Recently the bare wooden ' Temperance Hall ' of a village was the scene of a whist drive. The district nurse let it be known that she wished to organise one for the benefit of nurses. Although the posters solemnly announced the name and style of the Fund, few of the supporters knew or cared more than that it was ' Nurse's Whist-Drive ' and they could trust her to choose a deserving cause.

Above: The Countess Mountbatten of Burma receives from Sir Philip Warter, Chairman of Associated British Picture Corporation Ltd., a cheque for £10,596 18s. 4d., the result of collections made by nurses at cinemas in the ABC circuit in aid of the Appeal. They are seen here with Lady Heald and Miss Duff Grant. The occasion was a reception at the Royal College of Nursing. (See also page 434).

Willing Helpers

Toc H offered to provide a Master of Ceremonies and other helpers; the Women's Institute provided the refreshments and everyone sold tickets (1s. 6d. and 8d. for refreshments). When the night arrived the Hall was quickly full. None of your polite (and shakey) green baize tables! Long trestle tables and benches, so close it was almost impossible to pass between, ran the length of the hall. The ' Tortoise ' stoves were only a minor portion of the heating apparatus, for 250 excited people raised the temperature of the air even more.

Following the shouted instructions of the M.C. (who had very little voice left by the end of the evening) the players concentrated seriously on their cards from 7.30 p.m. until 11.30 p.m., with a short interval for refreshments. Excitement was high when the score cards of the most successful players were collected for checking by the Toc H helpers. There were at least 16 prizes of various kinds, all given by well-wishers, and the first was a live pig! The hall was not clear until midnight after a record attendance, record receipts, a huge success and all the players happy to have helped 'Nurse' as they went off into the dark country lanes to their farms and cottages. And the Royal College of Nursing Educational Fund Appeal was £30 better off.

Let us not forget these local events, and the fund of goodwill behind them in the hearts of millions of people.

Book Reviews

THE NATIONAL FORMULARY, 1952.—(The British Medical Association, Tavistock Square, London, W.C.1, and The Pharmaceutical Press, 17, Bloomsbury Square, London, W.C.1, 4s. 6d., interleaved, 7s. 6d.).

This valuable small book should be welcomed by every senior nurse. Although as a formulary it is not primarily concerned with the action of drugs, an introductory chapter contains most helpful notes on the various classes of drugs. Included is a section on the first-aid treatment of poisoning.

One of the nurse's chief problems today in relation to drugs is her inability to remember the many trade names under which a familiar drug may be disguised. This difficulty is met by a section giving proprietary and trade names, and also those reputed to have an analogous therapeutic effect.

The Formulary is well produced in a volume of convenient size for the pocket. It can also be obtained in an interleaved edition. Many nurses will prefer the latter to enable them to add notes of their own and also formulae in use in the individual hospital.

INFECTIOUS DISEASES (Second Edition); with a Chapter on Venereal Diseases.—by A. B. Christie, M.A., M.D., D.P.H. (Faber and Faber Limited, 24, Russell Square, London, W.C.1. 25s.).

This book on infectious diseases should prove useful for all grades of nurses, but especially to those in training for the fever register or taking general training.

A few minor changes have been made to this second edition which brings the book as up to date as possible. The chapter on poliomyelitis has been largely rewritten and a fuller explanation of the course and treatment of this disease given. This is undoubtedly an important improvement on the first edition.

Mention has also been made of the newer drugs and their value in different diseases, although the author wisely points out that they are not fully conclusive in all cases. This should prove to students who are alert to the many changes which occur almost daily the important role they may play when these new treatments are adopted, as it is only by careful observation and reporting that may prove their worth or otherwise.

A colour plate showing some of the commoner germs has also been added. Unfortunately, in common with most other textbooks, this one is lacking in colour plates and photographs of distinctive features, such as rashes. As infectious diseases decline it is most important to have these, as there is less opportunity for students to learn by direct observation.

Apart from this, the book gives a clear, concise explanation of all the infections likely to be met with in this country.

For Student Nurses

Answer to Final State Examination Question by the Sister Tutor Section, Royal College of Nursing

General Nursing.

Question 1. Give an account of the nursing care and treatment which may be required for a patient admitted to hospital suffering from uraemic coma.

The patient will be brought to the ward on a stretcher and will be lifted carefully into a previously warmed bed, covered with a warm blanket and the necessary bed clothes. Windows on either side of the bed will be closed. A padded metal spatula in a receiver will be placed nearby for use in the event of an uraemic fit.

Details of the onset of the coma will be discovered from the relatives who will be allowed to see the patient before leaving the hospital if they do not wish to remain. A telephone number will be taken and directions for visiting the patient given. The relatives will be told gently of the dangers of the condition and of the possibility of the end occurring suddenly without the hospital being able to reach them. The religion of the patient will be discovered so that the appropriate priest, minister, or Rabbi can be informed.

The patient will be quickly blanket bathed with very hot water, and carefully dried with warm towels. An open backed flannel night shirt will be given to the patient and he will be arranged so that he is lying on his side with a pillow supporting his back. As this patient is deeply unconscious it is most important to see that there is a free airway, and his colour must be continually and carefully noted. The bed will be protected as he is likely to be incontinent of any urine or possibly faeces. The nurse will observe any bruises or bed sores or other marks that may be present, and will note signs indicating a full bladder. She will observe any tendency on the part of the patient to twitch when touched. The mouth will need very careful attention and a torch will be used so that a clear view can be obtained of the fauces and buccal surfaces. The tongue will probably be found to be brown and dry and the breath will smell of urine.

Other observations made on admission will be of the temperature, which is likely to be low, the pulse which may be irregular and the respirations which may be stertorous and deep. It will be born in mind that the deep expirations will involve an increased loss of both heat and moisture. The blood pressure is very likely to be raised unless the cause of the uraemia is some mechanical obstruction. Blood will be taken in any case for an estimation of the blood area. If the rise of the blood pressure is very marked the doctor may want to carry out venesection.

The subsequent treatment will depend upon the cause of the coma but hot sponging will be carried out twice daily, pressure areas attended to four-hourly, the patient's position changed from side to back and then to the other side. A cradle and support may be used to prevent foot drop. The mouth will be cleaned at least four-hourly.

Four to five pints of fluid will be given, per rectum or intra-nasally if the swallowing reflex is absent. Alkalis are likely to be ordered and possibly given intravenously, and the patient will be kept warm continually in order to encourage the action of the skin. It is not usual nowadays to nurse the patient in the classical renal bed or to give drastic diaphoretic treatment such as hot wet packs.

The urine will of course be measured if possible. A self-retaining catheter may be introduced if the patient is incontinent and complete anuria not present. Saline purgatives may be given and if the patient is incontinent of faeces care will be taken to keep him as clean and dry as possible. Hiccoughs may be treated by carbon dioxide inhalations for short periods.

Other treatment will be concerned chiefly with treating the cause and only in this way is there any hope of the survival of the patient. In spite of the apparent lack of consciousness of the patient, nothing should be said within normal ear shot that would be harmful should it be heard, since such words may be heard and remembered even though powers of speech and co-operation are absent.

This is the seventh cup to be offered; it can be won outright by a hospital successful for three years running. Winners of the previous six cups have been Guy's Hospital in 1914, St. Thomas' in 1925 and 1928, Charing Cross in 1937, The Middlesex in 1940 and 1951, and St. Thomas' in 1950.

Match Fixtures

Thirty-two matches must be played in the first round by May 24, the winners entering the second round to be played off by June 14. The third round must be played by July 5, the fourth by July 19, and the semi-finals by August 2. The final will take place early in September. Club secretaries should get in touch with their opponents as soon as possible to fix matches. The hospital drawn first in each pair has the choice of ground in the first round; in following rounds the meeting place is by mutual arrangement. The Nursing Times arranges the semi-finals and final on neutral ground.

Northern Ireland Survey

The Registrar-General for Northern Ireland, in announcing the mortality figures for the year 1951, states that the death rate from tuberculosis and the maternal mortality rate are the lowest ever recorded. The general death rate increased from 11.6 to 12.8 per thousand of the population, mainly as a result of the severe epidemic of influenza which broke out in the first quarter of the year; in fact, nearly 40 per cent. of the total deaths for the year occurred in that quarter. The infant mortality rate of 41 per 1,000 live births is lower than that of any earlier year with the exception of 1950. A survey of the past 25 years reveals some striking changes. Since the year 1926, infant mortality has fallen from 85 to 41 and maternal mortality from 5.6 to 1.1 per 1,000 live births. The death rate from tuberculosis has fallen from 147 to 45 per 100,000 of the population, a reduction of over two-thirds. Only two deaths from diphtheria were recorded in 1951 compared with 125 in 1926, while the number of cases notified fell from 1,263 to the strikingly low figure of 17. The general death rate has fallen from 15 per 1,000 in 1926 to an average of 11.8 per 1,000 for the past four years. On the other hand, the death rate from cancer has risen from 112 to 148 per 100,000 population. This figure is, however, somewhat below that recorded in 1950. Further, statistics which appear to indicate that deaths from a particular disease are increasing may perhaps be a little misleading. The apparent increase is sometimes partly due to growing accuracy in the diagnosis and certification of the disease, and this may well be the case with cancer.

Student Nurses' Association Swimming Club

The Student Nurses' Association Council has decided to revive the Swimming Club and to make every effort to hold a gala in the Autumn. This endeavour can only be fulfilled successfully if it is supported by a large number of Units. I shall be glad to hear immediately from all interested Units, as this will give an indication whether or not to proceed with re-establishing the Swimming Club and arranging a gala for this year.

All Units are eligible for membership. A membership fee (possibly 5s.) will be paid by participating Units, the amount of the fee being without regard to the number of swimmers in the Unit.

Should there be a large number of swimmers in any area who wish to compete in the gala, heats can be arranged under the auspices of the Southern Counties Amateur Swimming Association, in the areas, to avoid unnecessary travelling to London.

To run the Swimming Club it is necessary to form a small committee without delay. I should be very glad, therefore, to hear from any members of the Association, preferably in or near London, who would propose themselves as prospective committee members: their duties would not be onerous nor the meetings frequent. In the first instance the committee would be required to agree rules for the Club. The first meeting of the committee must be held not later than June 30.

The Swimming Club possesses five handsome trophies for the following competitions

1. Berkeley Cup Championship: the distance to be not less than 30 yards and not more than 66 yards, free style.
2. Goschen Cup: three styles team championship—each team to consist of three swimmers, No. 1 to swim back stroke, No. 2 breast stroke, and No. 3 free style; the distance for each swimmer to be not less than 30 yards and not more than 66 yards.
3. Paulin Trophy Diving Championship: each competitor to do three dives, (1) 1 metre, (2) 2 metres, (3) optional.
4. Princess Beatrice Hospital Trophy: free style championship, each competitor to swim one length.
5. London Hospital Challenge Cup: back stroke race, each competitor to swim one length.

In the interests of economy, we are not circulating Units with this information at the moment, in the hope that this notice will produce adequate response.

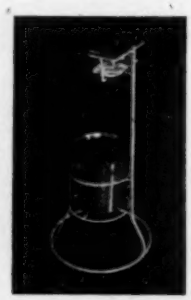
Secretary, Student Nurses' Association, and Hon. Secretary, Student Nurses' Association Swimming Club.

Mask Container

For some time the need has been keenly felt in the wards of the City Hospital, Nottingham, for a compact container for clean masks and the disposal of used ones.



The stand illustrated was designed by the Engineering Department in consultation with the chief pharmacist. The clean mask container is made of glass and fitted with drop-in lid. The bucket for the used masks is in stainless steel.

This stand was produced at a small cost, and will eventually be introduced in all the wards.

I was unable to find anything of this nature in ward equipment catalogues, and thought you may like to have this information as other hospitals would perhaps benefit.

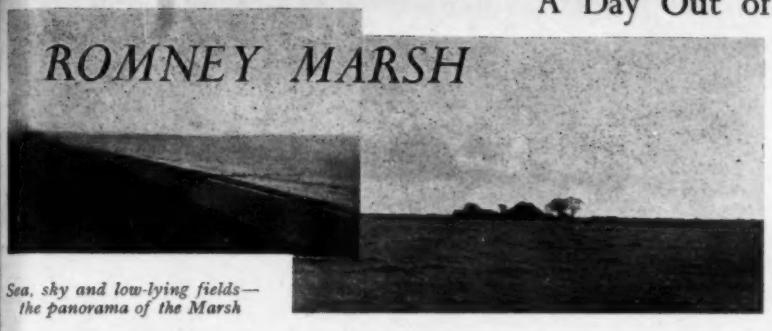
A Day Out of London — I

ROMNEY MARSH



Sea, sky and low-lying fields—the panorama of the Marsh

IN LITTLE more than two hours by coach from London you are in the 'fifth quarter of the globe'—Romney Marsh.

In the days before the Romans, when the weald of Kent was thick woods and uninviting, the people looked out on a shallow bay between what is now Hythe in Kent and Rye in Sussex, though the area was small and the sea a jealous landlord. But gradually walls of mud and thorn faggots kept patches dry and, with silt brought down by the rivers, cultivation was attempted. When the Romans came they built great sea walls out into the Channel and reclaimed thousands of acres of splendid farmland. The Dymchurch wall, three miles long, has stood till the present and, though badly battered only this winter, has not been greatly altered for 450 years. Even now a severe breach in the Roman defences would ruin the Marshes. The Rhee Wall, another wall from Appledore to Romney, no longer has a duty to perform.

Tranquil Charm

The Marshes—there are three including Romney Marsh—have a charm that is all their own and many find a day or a week there to be a tranquil and pleasant experience. Yet the marshes have not always been peaceful. Until the coming of trains they were exceptionally isolated and the individualism of their inhabitants took shape in the autocratic institutions they developed for local government.

A unique organ of justice—with Bailiff and 23 Jurats—was established. On the other hand the smugglers, whose presence is immortalised in many buildings, flourished.

The sea port of Old Romney gradually became stranded as the sea was beaten back, until it was where New Romney stands today. This in turn was left high and dry and New Romney is no longer a port. In its heyday it was one of the main partners in the Confederation of Cinque Ports and its place in the nation was an important one. It was by right of this status—and in return for supplying ships and men for the king in time of war—that New Romney could levy its own taxes and administer its own laws. In effect, these Cinque Ports founded the Royal Navy.

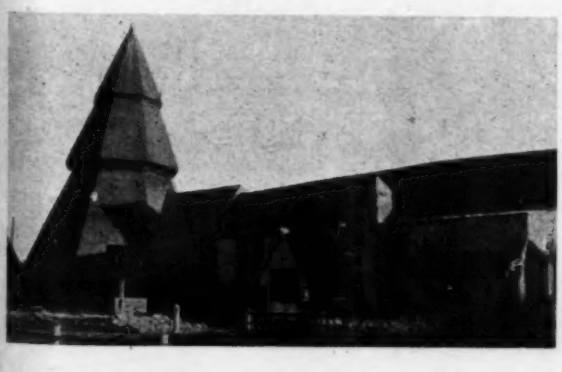
New Romney's main claim to our attention during a day's visit is in its magnificent Norman church. It was mentioned in the Domesday Book. It boasts a 100 ft. tower, the finest of its period in the south of England, and its superb Norman nave is extended by 13th century arches. Outside, the sea which lapped its walls built up a shingle defence so that we have to descend some steps to enter the church. In the days when the uncertain walls frequently let through a high tide and Romney streets ran with water the church was flooded and the huge pillars permanently ringed with a tidal mark. The church is dedicated to St. Nicholas. Here came King John, who unwittingly gave us much freedom, and Simon de Montfort who largely established Parliament, and therefore gave us the instrument for gaining much more.

In the High Street stands the New Inn, built first in 1381 and not unknown to the 'Free Trade Gentlemen', and next to it a town hall which used to have a market beneath it but which now, prosaically, has a town clerk's office.

Rival Towns

But New Romney is not the only town on Romney Marsh for, though it has the dignity of a mayor in spite of its small population of a couple of thousand, there is a comparable town—and a comparable mayor—next to it at Lydd. The two towns have long been rivals and even today their annual football match is often the excuse for carrying on a feud which in days gone by was no joke.

Brooklands Church, with its steeple on the ground.



Lydd's chief glory is in its now sadly ruined church. Bombed, and a mere shell, this 13th century 'Cathedral of the Marsh' had its 132 ft. high tower built by Cardinal Wolsey when he was rector. It can be seen by every ship sailing down the Channel. There are the remains of a Saxon church over a thousand years old here and the High Street with its old timber and tilting roofs looks as though it will be there to note the passing of another thousand. In the churchyard is the tomb of one of Captain Cook's cabin boys:

> 'Tom Edgar at last has sailed out of this world
> His shroud is put on and his top-sails are furled.'

For the valiant defence of their town against the Danes the king granted the people of Lydd the piece of land called the Rype as common land.

Naturally, the most famous inhabitants of Romney Marsh are its sheep and—at any rate before the war for there is much mixed farming now—no equal area in the world had such numbers. The superb Romneys have been exported to every sheep-rearing part of the world, for they are peculiarly resistent to foot rot and liver fluke—diseases which strike down so many other breeds if introduced to marsh areas. One famous testimonial to the breed came from Patagonia where a flock was driven 1,000 miles in two years, lambing and being sheared twice en route, and arriving in fine condition. No wonder a ram may fetch a price of four figures! At the outbreak of war these valuable sheep were some of the first evacuees.

Dungeness lighthouse. One of the most famous in the country.

For such an area the Marshes have a wealth of fine churches all worth a visit, but one in particular we should not miss—the famous Brookland church. The finest thing in this church is its lead font (there are few left in the country now) which has 40 scenes of Saxon England figured on it by a 12th century Norman craftsman. Of great interest, too, is the corner screened off to act as a 'tithe' room with measures to weigh out the corn. As there was very little corn grown on the marsh, this small space was quite sufficient. The 14th century pews, the chest captured from the Armada, these and other things are engrossing, but the most original particular of the church is the wooden steeple standing on the ground outside. Many are the legends of why the steeple is there (the devil features in several as using the steeple to mark out a fruitful field !) but perhaps the most lively reason is that, just as the church is built on a 'raft' of earth to avoid danger from floods, so the cautious builders kept the steeple on the ground to avoid danger from the violent marsh winds.

Defending the Coast

Mention has been made of the marshmen fighting the Danes and another foe has left an indelible mark on the marsh—Napoleon. When England daily expected invasion from the French the huge Martello towers—copied from a Corsican model—were erected to defend the beaches. These huge 'pill boxes' with walls nine feet thick are now largely derelict or demolished, though some have been bought by private people and converted into unconventional residences.

Behind these, as a second line of defence, and cutting the marsh off England, the Royal Military Canal was dug and today adds its share to the beauty of the marsh. On it each year Hythe stages a splendid water fête with illuminated, decorated barges, one of the most delightful sights you could wish to see.

The constant enemy through wars and alarums over the centuries, the sea, is fought all the time by the lifeboats around the coast and by the contractors who keep watch on the sea wall. At Dungeness, the most southerly point of the marshes and of Kent, the lighthouse and foghorn stand bleakly guardian over the lives of passing vessels.

At Dungeness, where a few families of fishermen stubbornly defy the call of inland comforts, the waste shingle and bungalows hid quite recently a plan as exciting as any in history, for it was from here that PLUTO (pipe line under the ocean) pumped millions of gallons of petrol across to the invading troops of the allies. The natural reticence of the local inhabitants no doubt helped to keep this astonishing plan a secret.

By far the best way to reach Dungeness is to catch the Romney, Hythe and Dymchurch light railway—the smallest public railway in the world, so it boasts, and indeed it would be hard to conceive any smaller. Sitting in delightfully absurd carriages which from outside look too small to take an adult we can travel in comfort at a spanking pace across the marsh, occasionally getting a view of a sheep or a cornfield.

These are but cursory notes to parts of the marsh and we may prefer merely to walk haphazardly, taking in the atmosphere of peace which it is diffcult to equal in areas far more remote than a couple of hours' run from the capital.

Radiotherapeutic Institute

A radiotherapeutic institute, the first of its kind in Scotland, is to be built at a cost of nearly £250,000 at the Western General Hospital, Edinburgh. The Red Cross Units of Cambridgeshire and Suffolk in 1948 combined to decorate and furnish a small flat at the General Hospital, Newmarket. It consists of two bedrooms, sitting-room and bathroom, and is used to accommodate the relatives of seriously ill patients who have to stay overnight. The relatives and staff greatly appreciate this amenity, and it has proved a boon in a region where travelling facilities are few.

The Red Cross waiting room was furnished for the convenience of relatives bringing patients into hospital, or for those waiting to see friends in the wards. (See photograph below).

New Clinic

Glasgow is to have a Davidson Clinic for medico-psychotherapeutic treatment. Appeals for support were made to a meeting in Glasgow at which Dr. Winifred Rushforth, founder of the Davidson Clinic in Edinburgh, outlined the work and aims of the treatment.

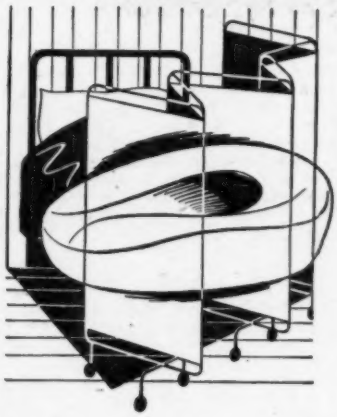
Mr. Leslie H. Dearne, A.H.A., has been appointed group secretary by the Leicester No. 1 Hospital Management Committee in succession to Mr. H. T. Plowman, F.C.I.S., F.H.A., who retired on March 31. Mr. Dearne is at present the Assistant Secretary (Medical Division), Sheffield Regional Hospital Board.

The Bedridden Patient



Straining at stool can be extremely hazardous to patients with high blood pressure, tuberculosis or heart disease. In these and other conditions, bed rest may not prove beneficial unless forced bowel movements are prevented by use of a gentle corrective such as AGAROL* Emulsion.

Through replacement of needed moisture and lubrication, and by mild stimulation of bowel muscles, AGAROL helps to establish the mechanism of the normal evacuation. It is easy to pour and extremely palatable to adult and child.

The condition of the constipated patient is further complicated when hæmorrhoids are present. Relief of pain with ANUSOL* Hæmorrhoidal Suppositories is due to the removal of pressure from nerve endings by effective decongestive action. The nerves are not anæsthetized and will, therefore, continue to function and give warning of other pathology. There are no styptics or hæmostatics with their danger of thrombosis. There are no vasoconstrictors to provide undesirable systemic side-effects.

The safety factor of Anusol Hæmorrhoidal Suppositories, even in continued use, is of special significance during pregnancy.

NURSE'S APPRECIATION

OF FAMOUS PRODUCT

"I find Steedman's invaluable and very strongly recommend them to all mothers." That is just one of the many enthusiastic letters we receive every year from busy nurses who introduce Steedman's Powders to their patients.

These nurses have proved that Steedman's are absolutely safe and gentle for little ones from teething time to fourteen years of age, inducing healthy regularity and keeping the blood clean and cool without any drastic purging. And so they recommend them.

That, also, is why our useful little book "Hints to Mothers" is in such great demand. Small and compact, arranged alphabetically for easy reference this book advises about the symptoms and treatment of all childish ailments, and tells what to do while awaiting the doctor in cases of accident or serious illness.

If your work brings you in touch with mothers and their little ones, may we send you a supply of these "Hints to Mothers" books for distribution? They are, of course, free and post free. Just address your request to

WHY PROTEIN IS DOUBLY IMPORTANT DURING PREGNANCY

ADDITIONAL PROTEIN is not only essential for the nourishment of the expectant mother and the healthy growth of her unborn child but it is also of special importance in guarding against pre-eclamptic toxaemia. By far the easiest method is to supplement the diet of the patient with Sanatogen Protein Nerve Tonic.

95% Protein—All the essential amino acids

Sanatogen contains 95% milk protein combined with 5% sodium glycerophosphate and has a specific nutrient and tonic action. It supplies all the essential amino acids together, has a high rate of utilisation, and is easily digested and rapidly absorbed. Sanatogen contains neither fats nor carbohydrate.

Sanatogen can be taken mixed with water or milk — the usual method — or sprinkled on food or mixed in cooked dishes. All chemists stock Sanatogen Protein Nerve Tonic.

In Parliament

Hospital Reserve

Mr. Remnant (Wokingham) asked the Minister of Health on April 3 what rate of pay was granted to a member of the National Hospital Service Reserve during the annual refresher course.

Mr. Crookshank replied that trained nurses were paid at the rates appropriate to their grades under Whitley Council agreements. Nursing auxiliaries were paid 1s. 10d. an hour for part-time service and received free meals on duty. If employed full-time they were paid the appropriate proportion of a full-time salary of £225 a year, assuming they had had no previous full-time service as a nursing auxiliary.

Mr. Remnant: Would the Minister agree that 2s. 9d. an hour is about the average pay for these refresher courses, and since that is, if anything, a bit below the rate commanded by charwomen, does he not think that it is inadequate?

Mr. Crookshank: The Hospital Reserve is the only one of the Civil Defence services which pays its members for refresher courses.

Maternity Beds

Sir Harold Roper (Cornwall, North) asked the Minister of Health on April 3 whether he would consider amending the rules governing the allocation of hospital beds for maternity cases in order that women who were unable to obtain home helps might be permitted to go to hospital for the birth of their children.

Mr. Crookshank said that hospital authorities had already been advised that adverse social conditions, which included lack of help at home, justified priority, next after medical need, for admission to hospital maternity beds.

Food and Drugs Act

Dr. Bennett (Gosport and Fareham) asked the Minister of Food on April 7 what measures he was preparing for the extension of the provision of the Food and Drugs Act, with special reference to hygiene in the preparation of food and in utensils and premises employed for this purpose.

Major Lloyd George replied that much of the preparatory work had been done, but it was not likely that it would be possible to introduce legislation during the present session.

Care of Senile Persons

Mrs. Mann (Coatbridge and Aidrie) sought leave on April 8 to bring in a Bill to permit the reception into and maintenance in mental hospitals and similar institutions, in Scotland, for the purpose of care and attention, of senile persons without certification of insanity or lunacy.

She said that for 20 years aged people in Scotland, had been put into mental institutions and certified as lunatics. The only way they could obtain a bed was by certification and this had caused distress to families and relatives. She anticipated that this problem would not diminish. She had found that in Woodilee Asylum, where there were 1,200 beds, there were 450 people over 60 years of age, and 365 over 65 years of age.

More than 25 per cent. ought to have been certified as senile, instead of certified as insane. The stigma of residence, nomenclature and certification should be removed and followed by strong administrative action to rearrange and classify these people into one group.

Mr. Logan (Liverpool, Scotland) who opposed the Bill said that Mrs. Mann was not advocating the abolition of mental institutions and that meant there would still have to be the entry of the aged into mental homes. The stigma would still remain. Nor was segregation proposed. The Bill did not remove the evil of the system and was a step in the wrong direction. Leave was granted and the Bill read a first time.

Surgical Appliances

Mr. Hastings (Barking) asked the Minister of Health on April 24 whether he was aware that hospital outpatients who were awaiting the delivery of surgical appliances had been asked to sign a declaration that if the National Health Bill, 1952, became law before delivery they would agree to pay whatever charges become payable; and if, in view of the fact that when the National Health Services Act, 1946, came into operation hospitals honoured arrangements previously made with patients, he would take steps to see that patients were similarly treated in this case.

Miss Hornsby-Smith replied that the Minister had stated on the second reading of the Bill that it was proposed, under the regulations under Clause 1, that charges would be payable for appliances supplied after the operative date of the regulations. He had suggested to hospitals that, in fairness to those concerned, they should warn patients of the position which might arise.

Teething Powders

Mr. Hastings asked the Minister of Health on April 24 whether his attention had been called to an article in the British Medical Journal of February 16, 1952, in which it was stated that serious kidney disease might be caused by teething powders; and whether he would initiate inquiries with a view to banning the sale of these dangerous medicines.

Miss Hornsby-Smith said that the Minister was advised that the evidence in this report was inconclusive, but various other inquiries were already in progress.

Most of us sincerely desire human happiness, and it surely is our special duty to befriend those of our profession who are in need. If all nurses who are able to would subscribe just a little to this fund for nurses the present difficulty of raising sufficient money to continue this work satisfactorily would be overcome. If nurses would be sufficiently interested their influence would be enormous and our funds considerably increased. It is up to all of us to ensure that no member of this honourable calling shall be overcome by want or disaster.

DOMESTOS

A CONTRIBUTION TO PUBLIC HEALTH

The most convenient form in which hypochlorites are available for public and institutional use is an aqueous solution of sodium hypochlorite. Domestos is specially prepared for general use within this field.

Domestos is twenty times stronger than carbolic acid and this concentration makes it (a) effective in dilute solutions, (b) easy to apply, (c) economical. Its acknowledged hypochlorite properties makes Domestos a powerful disinfecting agent, the use of which should be insisted upon in the cleaner's bucket; floors and walls washed or swabbed with a Domestos solution are effectively sterilised, the spread of infection is discouraged.

The employment of Domestos in toilets and lavatories ensures scrupulous cleanliness; it possesses the unique quality of cleaning lavatory bowls without the necessity of brushing—an unpleasant chore which is in itself neither scientific nor hygienic. Domestos will play an even bigger part in the maintenance of public health.
